The following is a review I wrote when Playing in the Light: A Novel was the monthly "Stanford Book Salon" choice: While remaining confused and jarred by the choice of narrator, I am still really glad I read Playing in the Light. Zoe Wicomb introduced me to racism, South African style, as no other author, including Patton and Coetzee, has before.

Set in a beautifully rendered 1990s Cape Town, Zo Wicomb's celebrated novel revolves around Marion Campbell, who runs a travel agency but hates traveling, and who, in post-apartheid society, must negotiate the complexities of a knotty relationship with Brenda, her first black employee. As Alison McCulloch noted in the New York Times:

"Set in 1990s Cape Town, Playing in the Light revolves around Marion, a woman of Afrikaner background, who hates traveling but nonetheless runs a travel agency, and her complex relationship with Brenda, the first black woman she has ever employed." "Zoe Wicomb depicts the life of a complicated, single woman in a changing and complicated place. Caught up in the narrow world of private interests,
