Featuring support for up to 11.2 channels of immersive sound, the AV8802 includes Dolby Atmos, Dolby Surround, and the complete Audyssey Platinum suite. It can be optionally software upgraded to support Auro-3D and even the hardware can be updated to the latest HDMI 2.0a standard so the AV8802 is ready for the Marantz's new flagship surround processor makes the most of the Dolby Atmos, DTS:X, and Auro-3D formats while providing a notable sound quality improvement over its predecessor. I remember my first flagship A/V receiver like it was yesterday. It was the year 2000, and Onkyo's TX-DS989, which

Dolby Atmos not only adds the additional dimension of height to the sound field, discs mixed with the object-oriented format have more presence and impact, even when played through a traditional 5.1 setup. Scalability is the key. Your processor or receiver takes the speaker

DD 5.1 channel digital processor preamp: Dolby digital, dolby surround, phantom, 3 channel and stereo. No remote and no manual but it's a preamp so its pretty straight forward. Can be used as a 2 channel like in my current set up with a Bryston 4B amp. Very decent sounding preamp and it's a Carver. $125 quite firm on the price. Text to 416-951-6084.
